Dear Parents/Carers and young people,

It's here - your Learning From Home Handbook has arrived!

As we approach the beginning of Term 2 on Monday, we are looking forward to welcoming our young people online for the Learning From Home program. Like many things at the College, this program is unique to the AITC and relevant to industry.

The Learning From Home Handbook outlines everything you need to know to get you started on Monday. It is a living document that will be updated regularly, if and when necessary, in response to our community. The handbook includes an overview of the program, a guide for young people, a guide for parents/carers, home/school partnership advice and expectations, available supports, FAQs and key campus contacts.

We ask that all young people logon to Schoology over the next few days to see what's on the platform in preparation for an 8.30AM start on Monday.

Campus staff will continue to reach out to all families to check-in about any concerns in the areas of health and wellbeing, change in financial circumstances and any other issues which may be causing anxiety at this time. We are a community and our aim at the AITC is to assist our members, where needed.

It is important that we support each other and work in partnership during these extraordinary times.

With your trust and partnership, we begin this journey.
